Social Capital and Adolescents with Hearing Loss

Presented by Dr Jill Duncan and Tim Byatt

On-Demand Presentation

Together with PhD student Tim Byatt, Dr Jill Duncan provides an overview of social capital and the role that higher levels of social support can play in creating improved educational outcomes for deaf or hard of hearing students.

Improved opportunities for social participation by DHH adolescents need to include alternative methods to communicate, interact with others and access information.

Dr Duncan and Tim Byatt will explore current research in the social capital area and outline some of the key evidence-based interventions that work to best support educational outcomes for DHH adolescents.

Fully online, self-paced learning accessible for 4 weeks following registration

$30.00 incl. GST

Participants who successfully complete this On-Demand Presentation will receive a certificate noting 2 hours of professional learning.
